$10,000,000 AID FOR VETERANS

Red Cross Provides Friendly Service of Many Kinds to Army of Disabled.

BULK OF WORK BY CHAPTERS

2,397 of These Are Helping Ex-Servicemen Obtain Benefits U. S. Provides.

One field of Red Cross service alone, that of assisting disabled veterans of the World War, entails expenditures $1,000,000 greater than the aggregate receipts of the Annual Roll Call of 1920, the American Red Cross announced in a statement urging a wide spread increase in membership at the Annual Roll Call, November 11 to 24. At the present time National Headquarters and the nation-wide chain of Chapters of the Red Cross is spending approximately $10,000,000 annually for the relief of disabled ex-servicemen and their families, while the aggregate receipts from last year's Roll Call were approximately $4,000,000.

It is in the $2,397 of the 2,397 Red Cross Chapters which still are helping solve the veterans' problem of adjusting himself to a normal civilian status that the greater part of the cost of this service is borne. Of the total sum spent for veterans' relief last year, National Headquarters expended a total of more than $2,000,000, while the remaining disbursement of approximately $7,000,000 represents the contribution of Chapters in this country-wide effort to assist the Government in providing the aid sorely needed by these men and their families.

An Ever Expanding Problem. That the problem of the disabled service man is ever-expanding and probably will not reach the peak before 1925, is the assertion of well-informed Government officials and that 2,397 Red Cross Chapters regard it as their most important work is evidence that the expansion is in nowise confined to a particular section but is, on the contrary, nationwide. At the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1921, there were 23,300 disabled service men in the 1,922 United States Public Health Service, Contract and Government Hospitals and Soldiers Homes, and that number is increasing at a rate of 1,000 a month.

Thousands of these men receiving medical treatment, compensation and vocational training from the Government today, started their efforts to obtain them through the Red Cross Chapter. The Chapter, acting as the disabled man's agent in claims against the Government, informs the man as to the procedure necessary to gain for him that which is provided him by Federal statute. His application for compensation, medical treatment and training are properly filed with the aid of the Red Cross Chapter.

Many Forms of Assistance. If there is delay before the man's claim is acted upon, the Red Cross Chapter lends the man money to meet the imperative needs of himself and his dependents.

Most vital to the man's gaining full benefit from the Government's care is keeping his mind free from worry about his home. Keeping the veteran's family free from hardship of every kind and informing him of its welfare is another province of the Chapter. Free from fear on this score, the man's recovery and advancement usually is rapid.

Every month during the last year, the American Red Cross has given service of one kind or another to an average of 123,215 former service men and their families. An indication of the extent of the faith reposed in the Red Cross Chapter is to be found in the fact that there were 3,654 requests for friendly aid in the solution of personal problems.

448 Workers in Hospitals. While the man prior to entering Government care deals largely with the Chapter, afterward he comes into contact with the service provided by National Headquarters. There are 448 Red Cross workers in the United States Public Health Service and contract hospitals and other institutions in which these men are being cared for, whose duty is to provide for his recreation, help him with his compensation claims, keep him in touch with his family; in short, meeting his every need outside of that provided by the Government. While these are a few of the responsibilities of the National Organization, they are by no means all. Among other Red Cross accomplishments for the year are:

It handled 70,732 allotment and aid allowance claims. It delivered through its Chapter organization 63,955 allotment checks to veterans who had moved from the addresses furnished to the Bureau of War Risk Insurance. It provided a special fund of $10,000 for medical assistance to men under vocational training. It made 22,295 loans totaling $450,000 to men taking vocational training, of which 25 per cent has been repaid.

Isaak Walton. Isaak Walton is a name held in sweet remembrance by thousands who love the outdoor life, and he is so remembered by his book, "The Compleat Angler, or Contemplative Man's Recreation." Although angling, or fishing is the subject, the writer goes beyond it, and gives expression to many fine thoughts respecting streams and fields and flowers. It is the work of a kind and gentle soul alive to the beauties of nature.

Mortland Won. The Rev. B. P. Jones, of Franklin, was talking rather seriously to his four-year-old son, Mortland, Sunday, on misbehavior, when the child interrupted him by saying: "Daddy, you know you make me lose my heart when you talk like that."

The father says the talking stopped—Indianapolis News.

The Mare Shows Up Faulkner

By HAROLD SINCLAIRE

Copyright, 1921, Western Newspaper Union. Spur a horse? You're joking, sir. Yes, I wear spurs, because I ride with my heels out and my toes in, but if you'll look again, sir, you'll see that there's no rowels in the shafts of my whip. I'm a gentle rider for the hand, and I'd touch my horse's flank with the handle and, to signal him, but as for hitting him—why, there ain't no animal more willing than a horse, nor one with more human intelligence or more anxious to please, if you treat him right.

Yes, I suppose it is a gift, this understanding of horses. Women? Better than men, I should say—that is, some men understand horses, but pretty near every woman who likes them gets to know them. That's what I liked about Miss Millicent. She came of a horse family, Kentucky born, and what she didn't know about horses—why, she'd talked horse since she was a baby, and her father, Colonel Emery, owned the finest stud in Lexington. Miss Millicent was brought up with the idea that a man who couldn't ride was only half masculine. And riding's more than sticking on and waving the reins up and down or clicking to say "go faster."

I guess that click was what first put me wise to Faulkner. Finely made man he was, fine clothes, though some what flashy to my taste, and Miss Millicent certainly took to him.

And so mister, when I heard Faulkner clicking under his breath to Beauty, I said to myself: "You'd be more in place driving a butcher's wagon than taking Miss Millicent riding."

He rode Beauty on the curb—her as wouldn't have hurt a fly, so sweet-tempered she was and gentle. And her mouth: Lord, he sawed like a butcher!

Miss Millicent had been sweet on young Mr. Drew, and he on her, before Faulkner appeared on the scene.

I couldn't see Faulkner hurting Beauty and cutting out Mr. Drew without taking some steps to stop him. I puzzled a long time over it. I see Mr. Drew getting mopey and mopey. I went into town to see the circus and I met him at the door but my old friend Jim Haynes with his trick mare. It seemed like Providence.

"I can't sell you Nancy," he said. But I'd lend her to you. What's the game?"

When I told him he swore he wouldn't take any money. It was as good as a play, he said, and he hoped I'd tell him all about it the next day. "Can't let you have Beauty today, sir," I told Mr. Faulkner the next morning. "She's a little off her feed, sir. But I've a nice little mare here—quite as a babe and fit for a lady."

"Mr. Drew," says I that same morning, "if you was to take a little ride out to Holmes' Height about eleven o'clock, maybe it wouldn't come amiss."

He grinned. "I don't quite follow you, but I'm on, Hicks," he says. And so I saddled my little mare and rode out with Miss Millicent and Faulkner, and he behind as a groom ought to when his young lady has a beau.

I fell a good ways behind that day, and when we reached Holmes' Height they had disappeared over the rise. I knew Faulkner would just about have got up courage to try his spurs by the time the trick mare was winded. And sure enough, hardly had I got to the top when I heard Miss Millicent screaming—not with fear, but with laughter.

There sat Faulkner, clinging to the mare's neck with both hands, his feet working like windmills, and the little mare going round and round in a lot as big as a circus ring. His coat tails was flying, and he was swearing and hollering, and presently he flew over the mare's neck and she stopped stock still and watched him land in a pool of the stickiest mud anywhere in the neighborhood. And just at that minute Mr. Drew comes riding along and stops and picks Faulkner out of the mire. But he wouldn't get on the mare's back any more. So Mr. Drew sees Miss Millicent home, and Faulkner and I follow, me leading the mare and him walking. But I noticed Miss Millicent and Mr. Drew leaning inward on their saddles again like they used to.

That's all, sir, except this gold watch Mr. Drew gave me the day they were married. "I understand, Hicks," she said to me. And what do you think she did? If she didn't put her hands in mine and cry with happiness. Yes, me, sir. I'm her head coachman now, but when Miss May gets a little older I'm going to take riding and teach her to handle horses. You see, it comes out in the blood, mister.

Nations Join in Tribute. This year once more the peoples of the countries with which the United States was associated in the great war are displaying most sympathetic understanding of Decoration day, and in every thoughtful and considerate way are contributing to its celebration. The statesmen of foreign lands speak in praise of the fighting men we sent abroad; their armies and navies pay the tribute of brave men to brave men; their women and children deck with flowers the graves of the strangers. How much of comfort the words and acts of those at whose thresholds in distant lands our dead sleep will bring to sorrowing parents, widows, children in all parts of this country nobody can say, for their message is treasured in homes where grief and pride does not find or seek expression in words.

MRS. HENRY TICEHURST

Mrs. Margaret (Woods) Ticehurst was born February 16, 1856, and passed away at her home in Glover on September 26, 1921. She had been in poor health for some time but was not considered seriously ill until a few weeks before her death, when there seemed to be a general breaking down of the whole system and she did not have strength to rally.

In early life she was united in marriage to Henry Ticehurst and practically her whole life has been spent on this farm. She was a kind-hearted woman and no one was ever turned away from her door. Funeral services were conducted from her late home on Thursday, Rev. N. B. McClung, pastor of the U. P. church officiating and interment at Glover cemetery. The floral offerings were beautiful. She leaves to mourn her loss, her husband, to whom much sympathy is extended as his home is now so lonely, a sister, Mrs. Mary Robinson, who helped to care for her in her last illness, and other relatives. Those from away to attend the funeral were Mrs. Mary Robinson and family of Greensboro, Edward and Vernon Ticehurst of St. Johnsbury, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Ticehurst of West Glover and Mr. and Mrs. Spencer of Hardwick.

CARD—We desire to express our appreciation of the sympathy and kindly help shown by all the neighbors and friends during our sad bereavement. We wish to tender sincere thanks for the floral offerings and to those who furnished autos and assisted in any way.

Henry Ticehurst.
